

The SIP Native-to-Native Mentorship Program
Application for Mentor and Mentees 2021-2022

Welcome! The Society of Indian Psychologists (SIP) Native-to-Native Mentorship Program is designed to link generations by connecting American Indian, Alaskan Native, Native Hawaiian, Pacific Islander and First Nations Indigenous psychology students and early career professionals with experienced Native psychologists. We match Native individuals who are aspiring for careers in any area of psychology (academic, research, industry, public service, clinical, school, or consulting) with Native mentors and we provide advice, support and training, CEU webinars, and a Native community of support to enhance career and personal development.

This Program Application is for a one-year commitment of time with an option to re-enroll for additional years. Matched participants agree to participate in a minimum of four (4) virtual conferences with their mentor or mentee per academic year (2 per semester), as well as to attend the webinar orientation session, and the five-part community-building series On Becoming a Native Psychologist. All participants are expected to attend the annual SIP Retreat/Convention in June 2021 held in Logan, Utah.

All Native-to-Native Mentorship Program participants must be Full, Retired or Student Members of the Society of Indian Psychologists (SIP). Dues ($50, $35 or $20) are assessed annually (June) and must be currently paid for the 2020-2021 year. For questions about your SIP membership status please go to www.aiansip.org and contact SIP membership chair.

Once your application is received you will be notified of your preliminary acceptance and assignment to attend one of the initial Orientation Webinars on Zoom videoconferencing software. Orientation meetings will be scheduled for October 2021 for Mentors and for Mentees, separately. You must attend one of the Orientation Webinars in order to participate in the matching process for the Native-to-Native Mentorship Program. Mentorship matches are made on criteria including availability, geographic time zone, and when possible, career match to expertise. We endeavor to refrain from dual role matching of persons with any existing relationships (e.g., research advisor and mentor). You may prepare for the program by downloading the free Zoom app (Zoom.us) to your devices or a desktop computer.
